Kelly Bar and Drilling Tool

The kelly bar is of telescopic structure whose function is to transmit the torque and the feed stress to the drilling tool at the lower end so as to accomplish the cast-in-place pile pore-forming operations. The kelly bars used by Xuzhou Construction Machinery Group all adopt high strength alloy steel pipes, and both the inner and outer key bars adopt high strength wear resistant materials so as to guarantee the drilling construction efficiency; long service life and high reliability.

Machine -locked kelly bar

1). Friction type kelly bar

The friction type kelly bar applies to drilling of ordinary soil layers, and has a high drilling efficiency in relatively soft soil layers. Both the inner and outer key bars are easy to unlock and it is easy to lift the kelly bar. It generally consists of 5 sections of kelly bars, and the drilling hole is generally deeper. The friction type kelly bar pressures downward relying on the friction force between the key bars, which gener-ates a relatively small stress and is not suitable for drilling of hard formations.

2). Machine-locked kelly bar

The machine- locked kelly bar pressures downward relying on the pressure surfaces of the inner and outer key bars, which generates a big stress and applies to driling of hard formations. The kelly bar generally has no more than 4 sections and has a drilling depth within 80 meters. The machine-locked kelly bar must have the inner and outer key bars unlocked before lifting up the kelly bar, and the unlocking procedure is relatively complicated. Kelly bars and drilling tools suitable for all kinds of working conditions may be configured So as to meet the requirements of different users.
